

MY ARTWORK

By: Mary Delaney

"A juicy contradiction"

This is done with acrylic paint. I really enjoyed this project because it's super bright and even though it wasn't supposed to be detailed, it was still a challenge to make the candy look realistic.

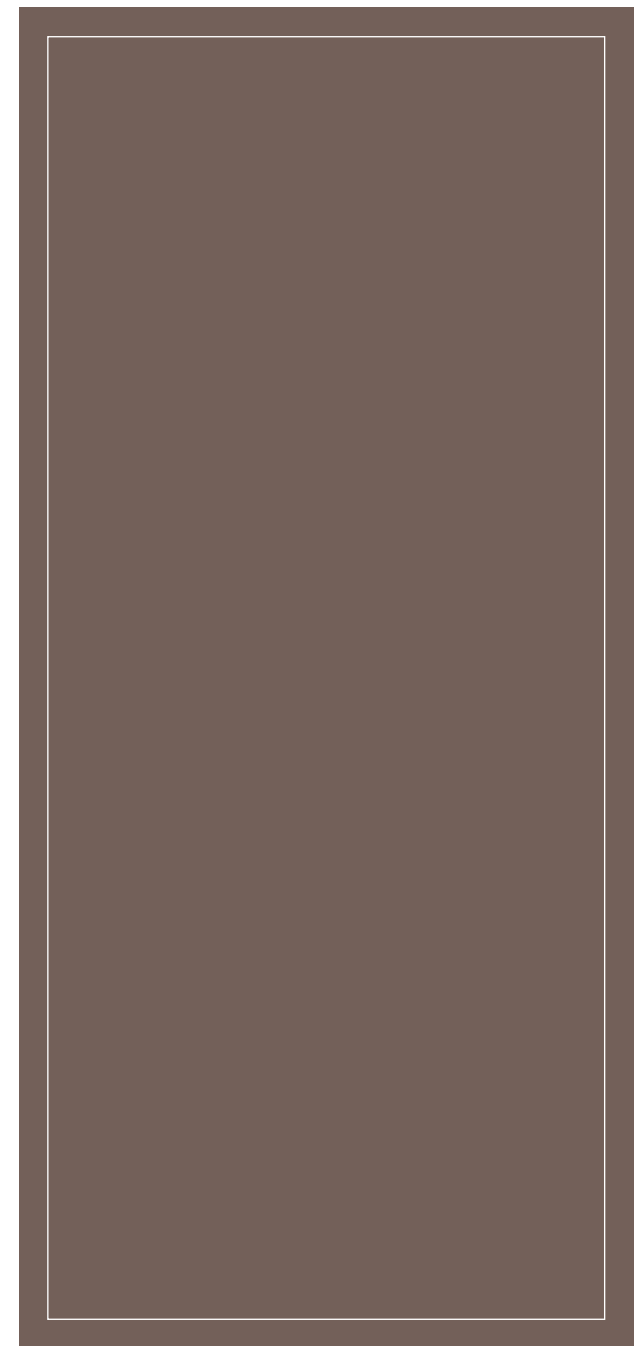

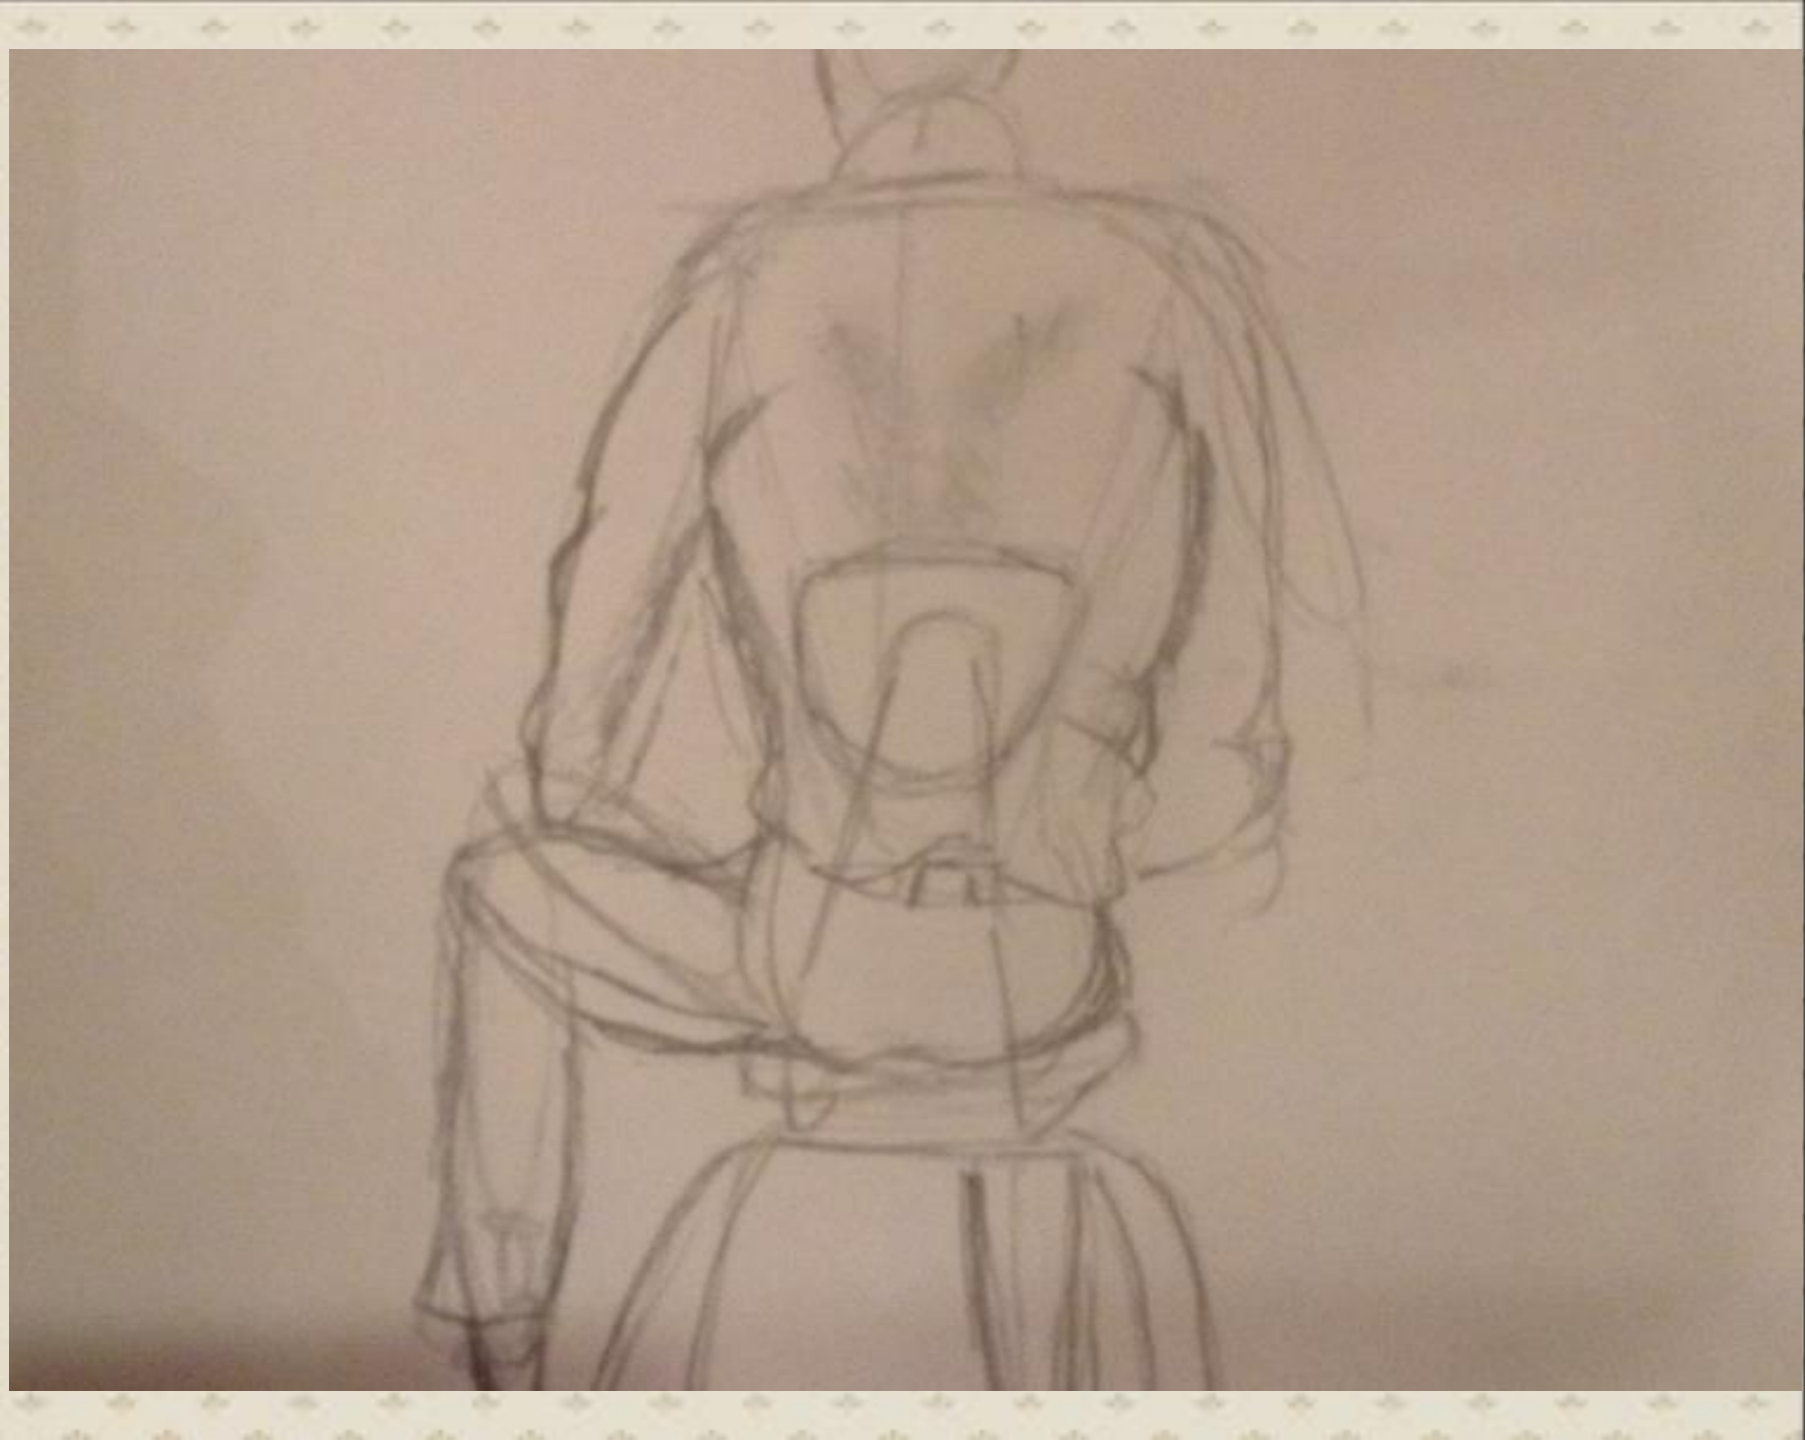

"Street style"

The medium used was marker for the letters and oil pastel for the brick background. This isn't my favorite because it was hard for me to make the letters look in unison but I did still enjoy doing it

"Mr. Krauss"

This was done in pencil.
This was interesting to do because there was a time limit to draw it and it was kind of difficult but I really enjoyed it because I learned a lot

"City scape"

This project was done in watercolor and it was difficult because it had to be exact and perfectly measured but it was still fun because of the end result.

"Dandelion"

This was done in marker. This project was really hard because it took so much time to complete and it was really tedious but it was good because it taught me to complete something even if it's really tedious and not fun.

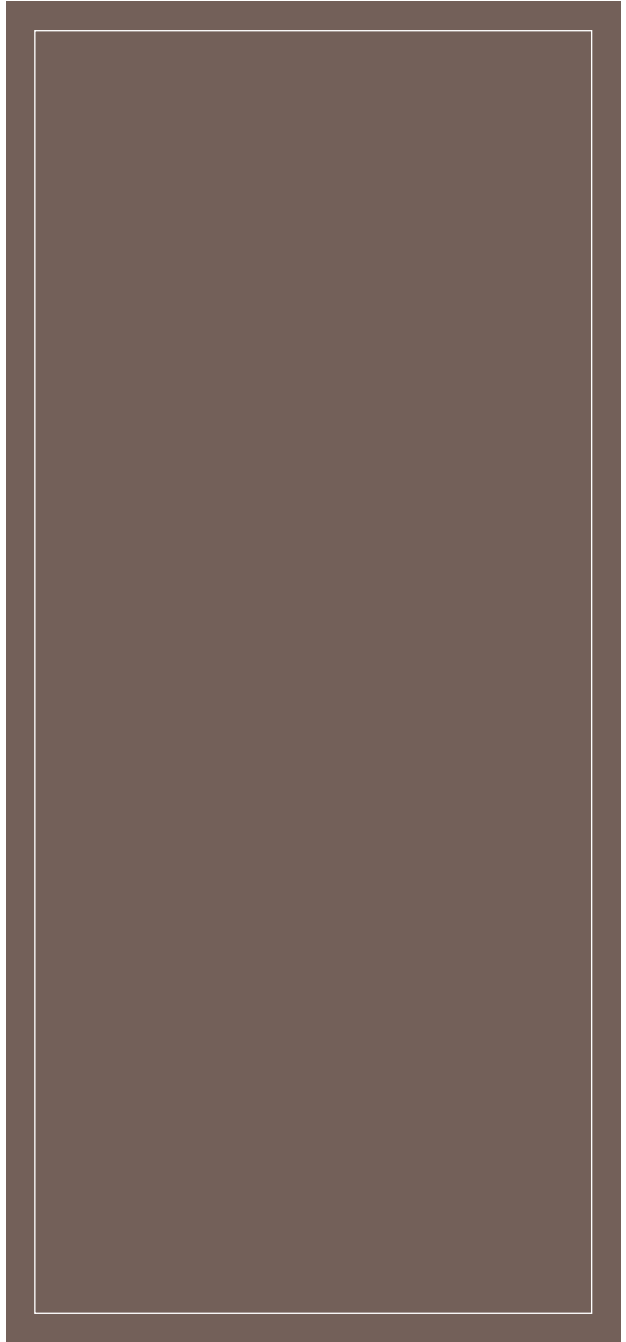

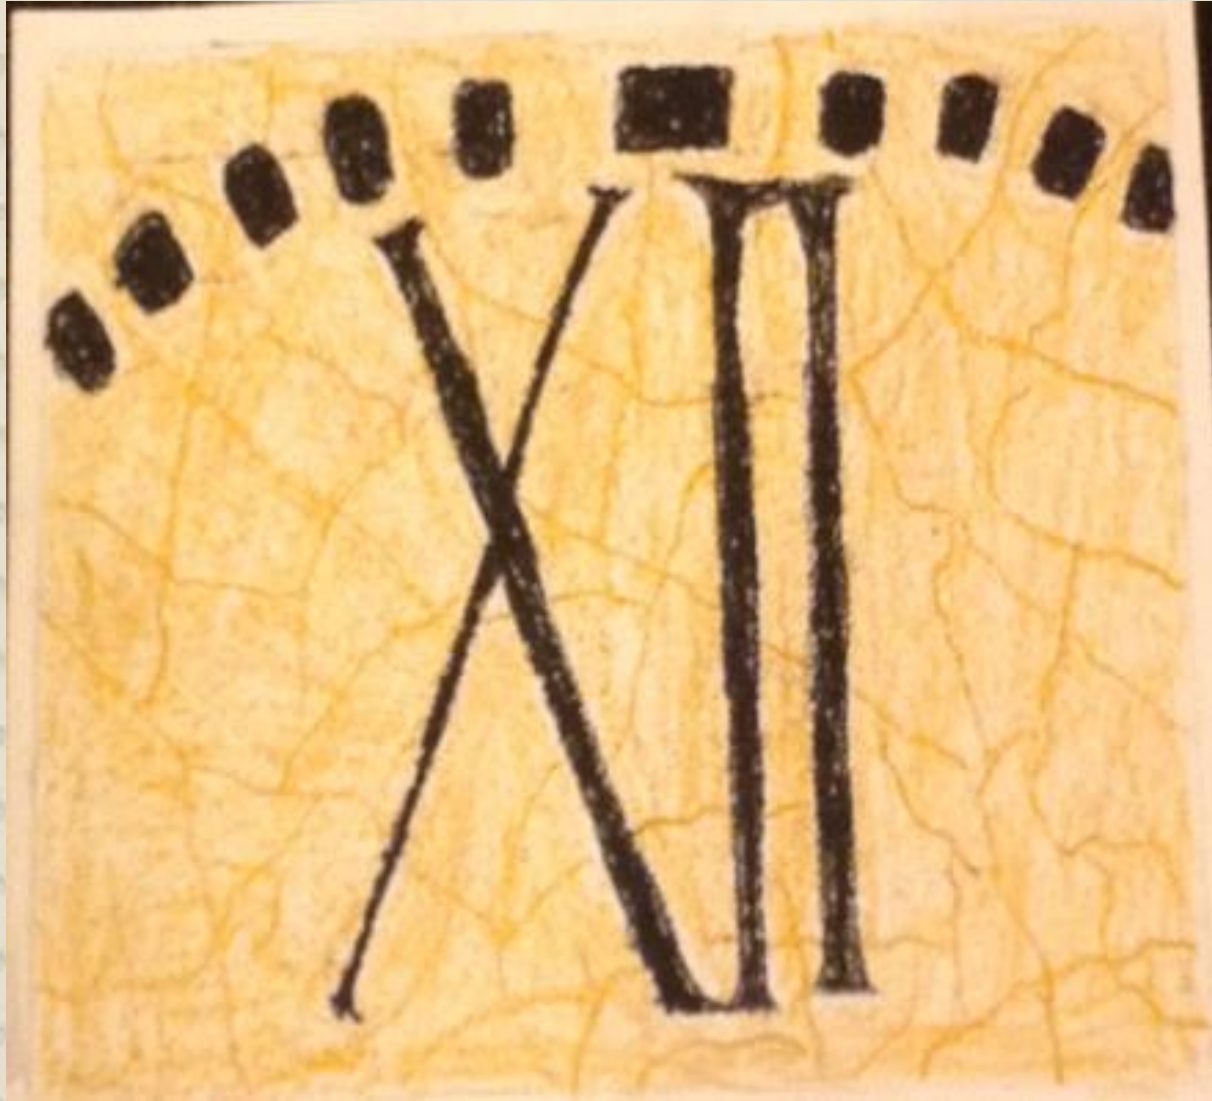

"Tour Eiffel"

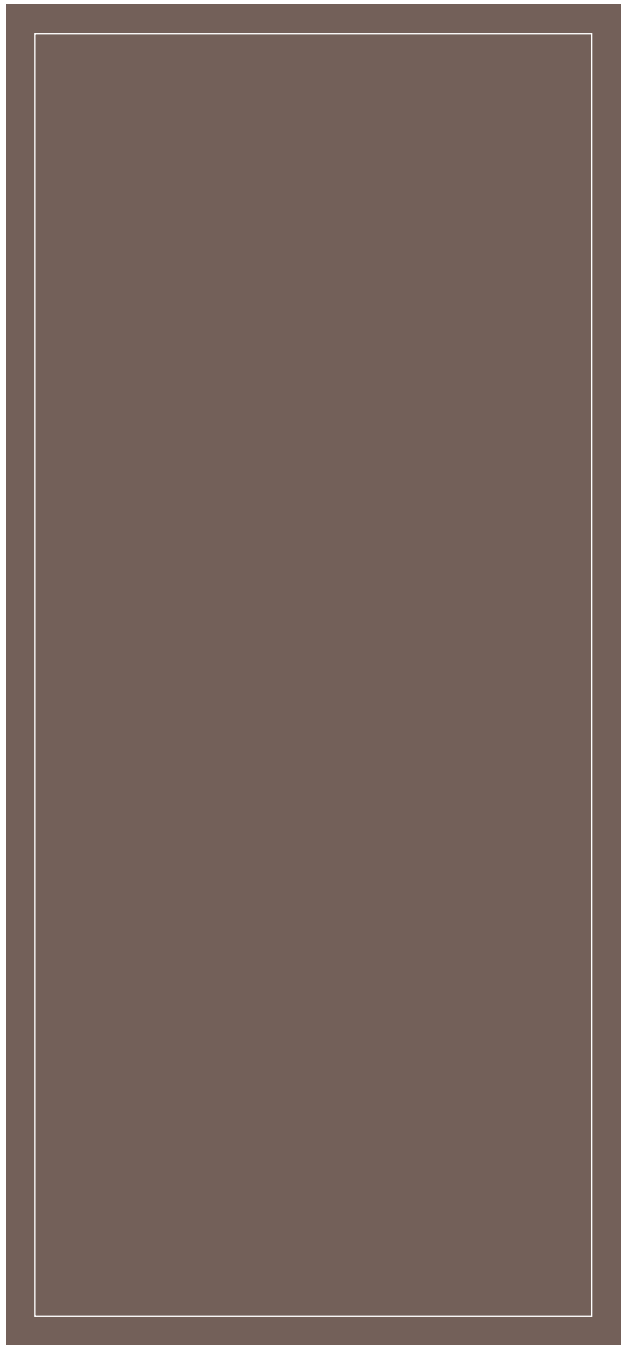

This was done in pencil, colored pencil, and coffee stains for the background. I really enjoyed this project because we could basically choose whatever we wanted to draw and staining the paper with coffee was really fun, also.

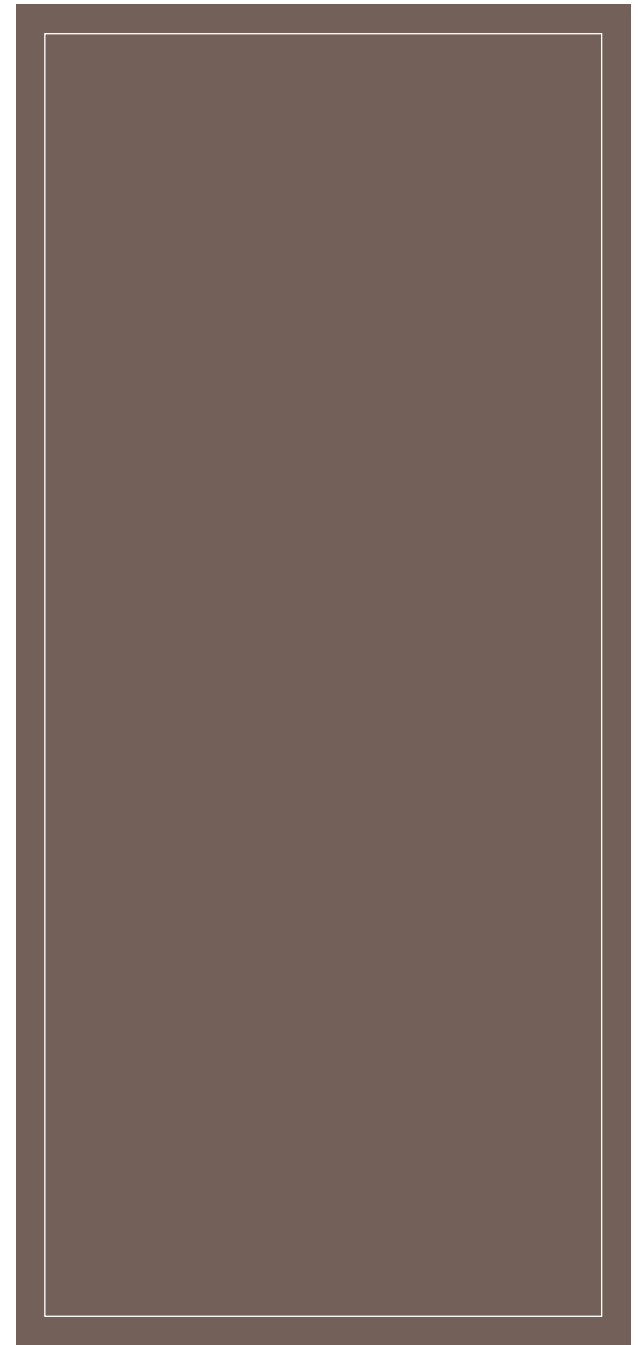

"Tick Tock"

This was done in oil pastel, pencil, and water color. This is one of my favorite projects because it was really fun to use the three different mediums. It was difficult to use certain mediums, for me like the oil pastel but it was fun because I got to practice using all the mediums.

"Myself"

This was done in pencil. This was interesting to do because it was hard to think of things that represent yourself and then draw them on paper but it was interesting to see what you came up with for yourself
